Martin Glick, founder and former CEO of The Albany Group, joins Brightfield Strategies

Brightfield Strategies, a management consulting company specializing in contingent workforce strategies, today announces that Martin Glick, founder and former CEO of The Albany Group, has joined Brightfield as the firm's Senior Associate of Global Compliance.

Trained as an accountant, Mr. Glick is a serial entrepreneur who started several successful companies serving the needs of contractors in the U.K. and elsewhere in the world. Most notably, Mr. Glick has been a leader in educating companies about "umbrella" organizations which are commonly used in the U.K. as intermediaries to supply independent contractors to end-use companies. Mr. Glick recognized that many organizations did not have the knowledge or resources needed to comply with the diverse staffing rules in foreign jurisdictions. He formed the Albany Group to compile the information and provide the expertise organizations need to comply with the complex staffing and employment laws around the world.

"We have been working with companies in the UK and other parts of Europe for the past few years. Martin adds an in-depth understanding of what it takes for global companies to do business and be compliant in emerging markets such as China, Latin America, and South Africa," said Christopher Minnick, Brightfield's Managing Partner.

Based in London, Mr. Glick will be responsible for developing new business outside the US, and working with Brightfield's growing number of clients to design global contingent workforce programs.

About Brightfield: Founded in 2006, Brightfield Strategies is a privately held Limited Liability Company offering business analytics and consulting services to assist Fortune 1000 companies to design, implement, improve and optimize their contingent workforce management programs.
